

OLDHAM RACIAL ATTACK UPDATE — P3

THE LIES OF THE PRESS — P7

CONSPIRACY OF SILENCE

READING THE national newspapers, you'd think that racial violence is a white-on-black affair. Hardly a day goes by without one of the national papers or TV stations running a big story about how 'white racism' makes life hard for non-whites. Let a black footballer get into a scuffle with a couple of whites outside a night-club and 'the evil of white racist violence' makes headlines. Let an Asian youngster be called names in a playground and race industry workers will be queuing up to lecture about the need for 'anti-racist taskforces to re-educate school-children.'

But while the national media are keen to run big stories about the problems faced by non-whites in multi-racial Britain, they are operating a conspiracy of silence to keep you from learning just how bad the failed multiracial 'experiment' is turning out to be.

All the main newspapers, and TV stations as well for that matter, employ staff known as 'stringers'. Their job is to sift through local newspapers printed all over Britain, looking for stories for their own team of journalists to follow up. In addition to this, local papers and freelance journalists regularly post their main stories through a variety of press agencies, because they get well paid if a story is picked up by one of the nationals.

This means that there is no significant happening, even at local town level, which doesn't come to the attention of the national media. So if something important doesn't hit the news, it's because a handful of editors and sub-editors — all of whom share the same liberal mind-set — have decided to keep you in the dark!

If you doubt this, just consider the two headlines reproduced here. Both stories, about truly horrific anti-white racial attacks, were published on the front pages of local newspapers last month. But neither has received a single mention in the national media!

Imagine if an 11-year-old Asian boy was left seriously injured after being dragged down an alleyway in a Yorkshire town by eight teenaged white thugs, robbed and set on fire. We'd never hear the last of it, would we?

Imagine if two young Asian girls on their way to school were chased, racially abused and threatened with rape by a masked white man wielding a knife. Front page of all the papers or what?

And quite right too! Racial violence and abuse are disgraceful, whatever the colour of the attackers, and whatever the colour of the victims. But, unfortunately, the people who control what you read in the national papers don't see it that way at all. White people just don't seem to count with these over-paid liberal intellectuals. When whites are the victims of racial violence — as more and more of them are — they just don't care.

In fact, it's even worse than that; they do care — about hushing the situation up so that the truth doesn't upset their multi-racial applecart. That's why they won't tell you the truth about the sort of things going on in Britain today. That's why you haven't heard a word about these two appalling instances of Asian anti-white racial hatred.

'Youths set boy alight in robbery.' This was the shocking headline in the Spen Valley Guardian and Herald last month.

Youths set boy alight in robbery

The paper told how the victim, on his way home after playing with a friend, was abducted, robbed, terrorised and set on fire by a gang of Asian thugs. 'A defenceless 11-year-old boy suffered serious injuries when a gang of youths set fire to his chest — and all because he had only 30p on him.'

Fortunately, the little lad is recovering, having been rushed to hospital for his injuries after making his way home in tears of agony and terror. As his mother told the paper, the incident could easily have been much worse: "I am just relieved that he did not have his nylon tracksuit bottoms on

MASKED MONSTER TRIES TO RAPE SCHOOLGIRLS

Ricardo Street: Maniac on the loose

because they catch fire so easily."

All the attackers were described as Asians, with the ringleader being 14-15 years old, of slim to medium build and 5ft-5ft 4 in tall.

Nor is this the first time that Asian muggers in Yorkshire have set their victim alight. A similar attack took place in nearby Halifax two years ago on an eight-year-old! That case too was totally ignored by the national papers. Are they going to wait until some poor child is killed before they speak out and start to create public pressure for effective action by the police and courts against the racist thugs responsible?

Meanwhile, down in racially-troubled East London, the East London Advertiser ran this equally shocking headline. The two victims, aged 13 and 14, abused and chased by an Asian man screaming "You fing white b*s, I'm going to rape you." The petrified pair ran down the street, but the maniac caught up with them and started to drag them both away by their coats. According to the paper, 'the youngsters only escaped by the skin of their teeth when one plucky lass kicked out at their attacker.' As the beast ran off he yelled "I'm going to get you tomorrow."

The police described the attack as attempted child abduction, which of course it was. But it was also self-evidently a racial attack, one which, had it been carried out by a white pervert against two non-white children, would have made national headlines. Once again, the double standards are blatant.

The two victims were described by the police as "suffering from extreme mental and physical distress. One of them has been vomiting and has been unable to return to school."

But for the dailies, they don't count. They were only white.

THE INTERNET

Newspapers often lie in what they tell us, but even more often than that they lie by what they don't tell us.

Fortunately, their monopoly over the news is fast coming to an end. While a small circulation paper like BN can't break through the liberals' censorship on anti-white racial violence, the BNP's growing Internet presence is a different thing altogether. News that the BNP posts on the web is now seen by literally thousands of people within just a few days; and our 'hit' rate is growing all the time. As it grows, Establishment editors will grow more and more nervous about hiding the truth, because they will know that more and more people will know what they're up to.

In addition, by building sales of British Nationalist in towns and cities all over Britain, we're bringing home to more and more people in multi-racial areas the fact that the problems they face locally are part of a bigger picture. And we're warning people lucky enough to live in places that have not yet been effected what the future holds for more and more of our country unless something is done to turn things around.

The quicker we do this, the sooner we can build the BNP into the powerful, nationwide political machine which is the only thing which can pressure police, local councils and central government to put a stop to anti-white violence and discrimination.

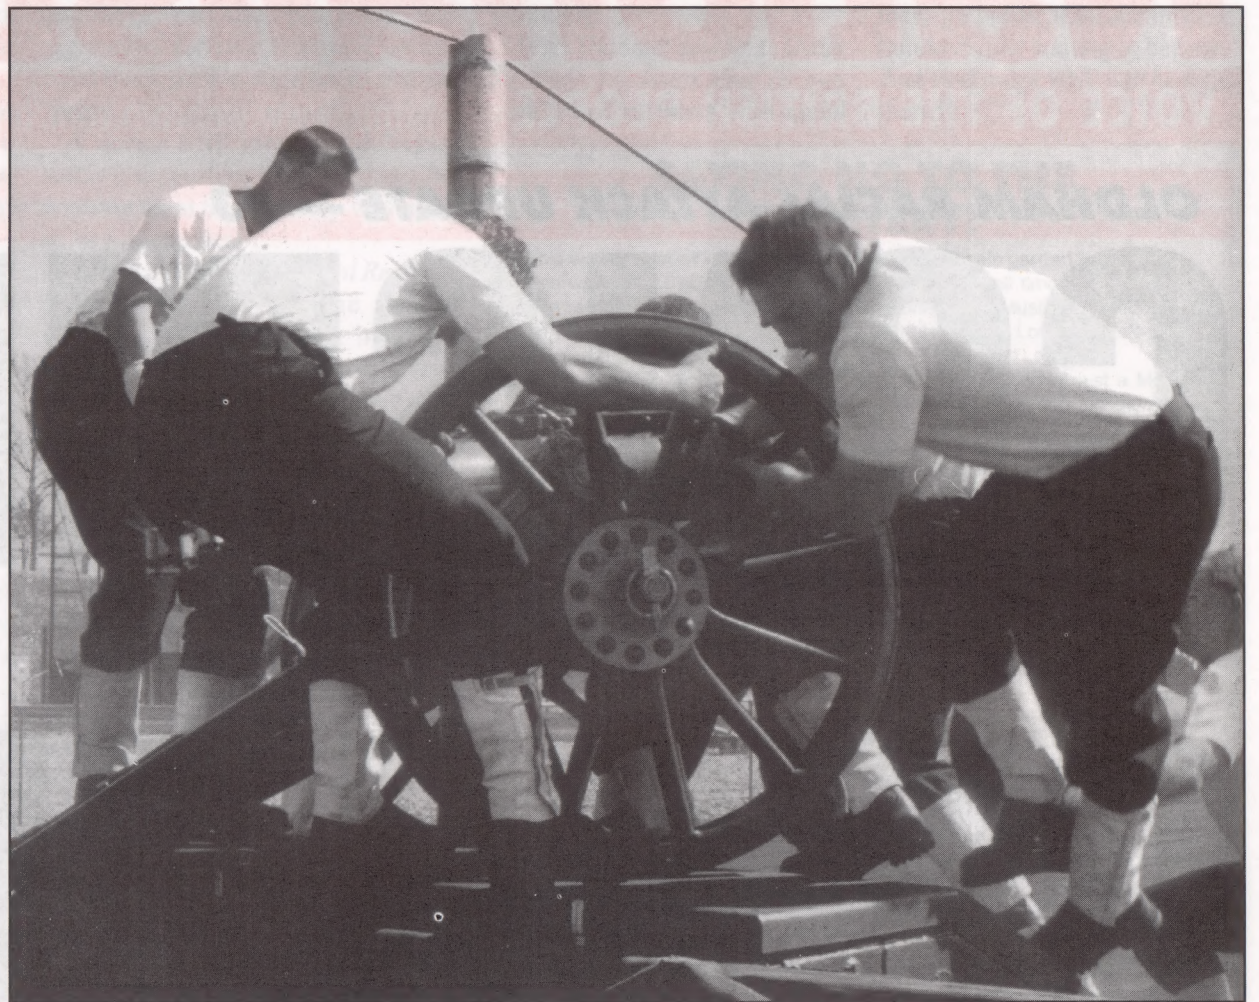

The British people have been turned into second class citizens and victims. The BNP is determined to end that; but we'll do it all the quicker with your help too!

BNP — A PARTY OF TRADITION

The recruitment of a number of former services personnel as a result of the Euro-election campaign, together with anger over two recent government announcements, have given a considerable boost to suggestions that the BNP should form an ex-servicemen's circle.

First there was the announcement that the bureaucrats in the Ministry of Defence are taking further steps to weaken the Paratroop Regiment — one of the finest and most patriotic forces within the British Army. The Paras invited governmental disapproval as a patriotic outfit when many in the first battalion marched into Port Stanley in 1982 wearing NF lapel badges. Now they are being kept deliberately under-strength. Each of the three regular battalions presently has one of its companies composed of entirely of Gurkhas — simply to make the numbers up. And to add insult to injury, it has also been decided to scrap the Paras' hard-won Pegasus cap-badge. This plan to do away with the symbolic heart of the Regiment has, rightly, been seen by present and ex-Paras as a calculated insult, designed as part of a campaign to undermine and break a body of men whose traditions and attitudes are so totally at odds with the sickly, flabby internationalism of Blair's project for the destruction of Britain.

Almost simultaneously, there came the news that the MOD is also scrapping the Royal Navy Field Gun Competition, for decades the highlight of the Royal Tournament, where three teams representing the naval commands of Devonport,

The Royal Navy Field Gun Competition is a celebration of teamwork, ingenuity, courage and stamina

Portsmouth and the Fleet Air Arm mark the relief of Mafeking during the Boer War by racing to manhandle dismantled cannons over a series of obstacles, reassemble them and fire off blank rounds.

One of the most grueling, dangerous and spectacular events ever devised by a military force, the competition has long symbolised the teamwork, discipline and commitment which made the British

Armed Forces the best in the world. So, of course, under Tony Blair, Peter Mandelson, Lord Ali and Co., the Gun run has to go.

While our servicemen are furious at these twin attacks on tradition and excellence, it is almost certain that both the Pegasus Badge and the Royal Navy Field Gun Competition will be abolished. But the British National Party pledges to restore both of them (together with County Regiments as militarily effective fighting forces) as a top priority for a future nationalist government. And while the Labour government is doing all it can to destroy the cohesion and effectiveness of the British military, we are doing all we can to increase the cohesion and effectiveness of the political organisation which will bring sensible nationalist government to Britain — the BNP.

BNP MEMBERS CANNOT BE SACKED FOR THEIR VIEWS!

Left-wing bullies who have hijacked the Communications Workers Union in Bristol got short shrift from the BNP's number one candidate in the Euro elections, Bruce Cowd. As well as being the BNP's South West Regional Organiser, Bruce is also a postman. During the election, he gave a number of interviews to newspapers in the area gaining a substantial amount of good publicity for the party in the process. This spurred leftists on to try to get Bruce thrown out of the union and to force the Post Office to sack him for his political views.

Both Mr Cowd and the Post Office management received a flurry of arrogant aggressive letters from the ageing Marxist acting as the union's secretary. Within days, however, the Royal Mail's response was making headlines in local papers 'Royal Mail tells staff BNP candidate can stand'. Bruce was told by management that, provided he did not seek to bring his politics into work and force his views on others, he is entitled to hold whatever political opinions he wants, and to promote them as he sees fit in his free time — which is the case in law.

The left-wingers' attempted witch-hunt also brought a short but effective response from Bruce Cowd himself, who wrote in a letter to the failed bullies: 'Concerning the position of members of the CWU as regards political beliefs, the law is laid out in

S.14 of the Trade Union Reform & Employment Rights Act 1993. The only union membership requirements which are legally enforceable in respect to membership rights concern themselves with employment in a specified trade, or the possession of relevant qualifications to pursue that trade. Further, union membership rights cannot be prejudiced by membership of any political party. Concerning the Royal Mail's equal opportunities policy, its administration is a matter for that organisation not for yourselves. I shall certainly take up any breach of my rights under the policy with the Royal Mail, if any such breach should occur.'

Game, set and match to Bruce Cowd, the BNP, and political freedom!

FRENCH INVADE CHANNEL ISLANDS

Just as moves to take Britain into the single European currency mean that we'll lose our gold reserves so the ever closer political union planned by Blair and his Eurocrat allies means that the Channel Islands will have to go as well.

At the moment, the Channel Islands are not even part of the EU, but official European Union maps show them as part of France, and the EU is moving to force the British government to rob the islands of sovereignty over their own taxation.

Perhaps the clearest signal of all of Labour's intentions as far as the Channel Islands are concerned is given by the fact that the Government has still not issued any protest to the French over their armed invasion of Guernsey waters back in April.

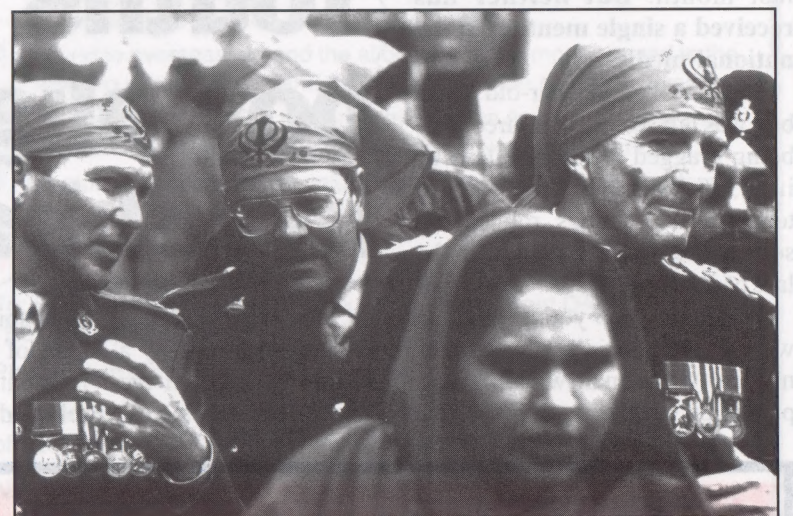

The incident arose after a French fisherman, caught fishing illegally in Guernsey waters was fined £4,000. The following day three French boats returned to the area dredging up and down over nets laid by local fishermen, and deliberately causing over £50,000 worth of damage.

As they carried out this criminal vandalism, they were supported by three armed French naval patrol vessels and a French navy helicopter. Although the boats causing the damage and the naval vessels were all repeatedly warned by Guernsey coastguards, they continued with their vandalism until the local fishermen's equipment had been completely wrecked.

By allowing this action to go unremarked upon, let alone unpunished, the Government has shown yet again that its project to submerge Britain within a federal Europe outweighs any consideration of our own national interest.

UPDATE ON SHOCKING RACIAL ATTACKS IN OLDHAM

As race relations in the troubled Lancashire town of Oldham continue to deteriorate, local Chief Supt. Eric Hewitt has again slammed the Asian thugs who are bringing the town to the brink of serious racial conflict. The outspoken policeman, who only a few months ago told the media that whites were the victims of 'ethnic cleansing', has now told the local press that anti-white racist attacks are "a dangerous and vicious trend, which has become a disgrace to our town and the Asian community."

At the same he revealed that there had been nearly 150 racial attacks in Oldham so far this year — roughly one a day, with the vast majority being carried out by Asian gangs against lone whites.

In one week in July alone, there were five or six incidents in which Asian gangs attacked defenceless whites, including women. Predictably, the local paper described these as robberies or 'motiveless' attacks. Only when three whites, presumably in retaliation, hit a lone Asian with an iron bar, did the words 'racial attack' feature in the story. This was followed by three or four nights during which there was an average of two Asian-on-white attacks each night.

This unprovoked violence finally led to youths and men from the all-white Limeside estate clashing with gangs from the neighbouring Coppice area, which Asian gangs have made into a no-go zone for whites.

This coincided with a separate 'turf-war' between rival Asian gangs from Werneth and Glodwick. After several clashes, teams of police officers and dogs were rushed to Cambridge Street, Werneth, to head off a 60-strong gang of Asian youths who were marching on their rivals. The gang scattered when the police arrived, but left behind them 13 petrol bombs, baseball bats, cricket bats, golf clubs, chains and metal bars.

At this point, with tensions high all round, Chief Supt. Hewitt once again took over the front page of the Oldham Evening Chronicle to appeal for calm from all sides. The effectiveness of this request may be judged by the fact that, the very next day, the paper reported yet another vicious anti-white attack, this time by a gang of seven or eight Bangladeshis who repeatedly clubbed a lone white teenager with a cricket bat.

BREAKING POINT

Talking to British Nationalist just as this edition went to print, an activist with Oldham BNP had this to say: "People in the town aren't at breaking point yet, but I feel we're very close to it. There's a lot of tension in Oldham. It's been like this for about two years now. Oldham has lost a lot of its night-life, because people don't feel safe in their own town these days; they go to places like Rochdale instead. The comments by Darcus Howe in the New Statesman weren't exaggerated. White people in the frontline parts of Oldham really do think there's going to be serious racial conflict. It's not a matter of anyone 'stirring it up'. Local people have had nearly as much as they can take. Just one spark could set the whole place ablaze."

The New Statesman piece referred to was published on 28th June. Under the heading 'Why I left Oldham with a feeling of dread,' West Indian journalist Darcus Howe wrote of Oldham as 'a very divided city, and dangerously so.' Young Asians, he said, are 'extremely solid as a social group and aggressively so... It is their time now. They have carved out their territory in Oldham. Should a Pakistani be attacked, a posse is mobilised in the twinkling of an eye... the violence is short, sharp and thorough.'

Probably only a non-white journalist would even have been able to go that far, but Mr. Howe failed to mention the real situation in Oldham, which is not that Asian violence is retaliatory, but that it is almost always unprovoked racist aggression. If white youths anywhere in Britain were behaving half as badly, there would be a national media uproar.

At least, however, the article broke the media taboo on pointing out that multi-racial Britain isn't all a bed of roses. 'I talked extensively to poor, very poor whites. They were preparing for bloodshed, they told me.' Writing of a conversation with several of them, Howe went on, "Hundreds will die," he said. And wherever I went, I heard similar forecasts.'

BN doesn't take any pleasure in reporting these facts. The spectre of communal violence facing places like Oldham (and it is not the only part of the country with such problems, although at present it seems to be the worst) is a truly terrifying one. If open conflict does break out, the losers will be innocent families on both sides of the ethnic divide. But pretending that there isn't a problem won't make it go away. The solution is not to ignore the situation, like the national media are still doing. Nor is it to go around trying to stir up trouble to make things worse.

The only sensible course of action for white activists in areas such as this, is to push for local separation between the rival ethnic groups. A drive around Belfast shows very clearly how housing redevelopment projects can be planned so as to put open green space and small light industrial developments between communities that don't get on. Alleyways that provide access for gangs to push into 'enemy' territory can be sealed off. Derelict buildings that provide bases for vandals, drug-abusers and juvenile gangs can be bricked up or knocked down.

And, of course, the police can be pressured to stop turning a blind eye to 'acceptable levels' of racial harassment by Asian youths, because experience shows that this soon escalates into the kind of potentially deadly violence now being experienced on an almost daily basis by innocent white people in Oldham, Bradford, East London, Peterborough and parts of the West Midlands.

Such pressure cannot, however, be applied by ordinary local residents acting alone. Nor will it be applied on their behalf by the representatives of any of the old Tory, Lib-Dem or Labour parties, because they were the ones who created the multi-racial nightmare in the first place. No! The pressure which is needed to make the authorities take the necessary steps to stamp out anti-white racism can only be created by local people organising within their own communities. That means building a strong local BNP, and creating genuine neighbourhood residents associations — ones which aren't under the control of Labour Party timeservers.

THE TED BUDDEN COLUMN

THE KLA

Mr Alan Clark, the sometimes eccentric but more often commonsensical Tory MP for Kensington, took time out recently to warn the Government of the vicious criminal element among the Kosovo Albanians at present flooding into Britain under the Blair beneficence. They were, he said, traditionally engaged in drug running, prostitution and violent banditry.

He made sense, as the depredations of the returning Albanians in Kosovo have so graphically illustrated. The Albanians are to the Balkans what the Chechens are to Russia and the Sicilians are to Italy; communities that are riddled with gangsterism. The Irish Government recently refused to grant visas to the Yugoslav football team who were due to fulfil a European Championship fixture in Dublin. Their excuse was that it would be offensive to the large number of Kosovo Albanians who they had welcomed to Ireland's shores.

Doubtless the Albanians included elements of the Kosovo Liberation Army. Well, the Irish government has long had a relaxed attitude to terrorists who have found sanctuary within its borders and they seem to have the same attitude towards the terrorists of the KLA.

WHOSE SIDE

ARE THEY ON?

Among the many strange sights of the northern Ireland 'peace process' was the spectacle of British troops turning out in force to erect a barricade across a road; stringing razor wire across the fields, diverting a stream to form a water hazard and generally behaving as though they were preparing to go into action against a ruthless enemy.

But wait, the 'enemy' is flying the Union flag — our flag, and is merely planning to walk down a road in part of the United Kingdom without let or hindrance as they have every right to do.

The problem is that the 'Independent Parades Commission' have decided to prevent them from doing so. We have had the bizarre spectacle of the residents of the Garvachy Road estate: British citizens who are pleased to demonstrate their disloyalty by flying the Irish tricolour; being allowed to set up an IRA no-go area and being supported in that exercise by the security forces.

The fly in the ointment is that when this Government, to whom disloyalty is an act of faith, designates any enquiry as 'independent', you can bet your bottom dollar that it will be anything but. The 'Independent Parades

Commission', the 'independent' body on arms decommissioning, the 'independent enquiry into the 'Bloody Sunday' affair', Chris Patten's 'independent' enquiry into the RUC — they are all guaranteed to be bad news for loyal British citizens.

Whose side are they on? we may ask. Well, if anything is certain in this uncertain world, we can positively guarantee that it won't be ours!

NEWSPEAK FOR COPPERS

During the long years when I campaigned against coloured immigration, I was constantly amused by the tendency of timid and overly-genteel old ladies to describe

Negroes as "dark people."

Now that the Metropolitan Police. Already thoroughly demoralised by Jack Straw's reign of terror against the Met., coppers anxious to avoid giving offence to immigrants are advised, nay required, to avoid using descriptions such as black or Asian and to instead wrap their unwilling tongues around the term "visible minority ethnic groups." In some parts of London an added complication is that the 'visibly minority ethnic group' is white!

If they have to suffer much more of the new 1984 style Newspeak, coppers will be too timid and limp-wristed to be able to wield a truncheon. Then again, if the suspected miscreant is black or Asian, under the Straw Inquisition they wouldn't dare to do so anyway!

TESTED

When Norman Tebbit was an MP, he proposed a simple method of determining where the loyalties of immigrants really lay. He proposed the 'cricket test' to discover whether the immigrants were sunburned Englishmen or colonists using lax immigration laws to turn this country into a home from home. The suggestion occasioned much hilarity and personal abuse from the massed ranks of Labour degenerates.

The one day cricket world cup recently provided an illustration of how right he was. Despite the fact that the 'England' team needed as much support as it could get (a pair of crutches wouldn't come amiss) and the future captain was a chap called Nasser Hussein, the support it got from sunburned Englishmen was positively underwhelming — the loudest cheers being reserved for when yet another Englishman bit the dust (which was often).

We all knew that the Pakistanis would be supporting the Pakistan team, that the Indians would be rooting for India and the West Indians the men from the Caribbean.

When Pakistan played India, the riot police were out in force fearing that the war in Kashmir would spill over on to the cricket grounds of England.

As it happened, that didn't materialise, with just a few Indians being beaten up by Pakistanis. The potential, nevertheless, was there and the authorities were apprehensive about aliens turning our green and pleasant land into a battlefield.

A pity that Norman Tebbit didn't go beyond his asinine cricket test and campaign for a total halt to immigration when he had the chance.

TORY PERVERTS AND LIB-DEM FRAUDSTERS

Michael Powell, a Tory candidate in two General Elections, downloaded 16,600 pornographic pictures of children on to his home computer.

Jailing the former mayor of Bridgend, Mid-Glamorgan, for three years, Judge David Aubrey condemned the "depraved and sickening images."

Powell admitted possessing the sickening material, with intent to supply and distribute it to other perverts. In addition to being sent to prison, the Tory sicko was ordered to register as a sex offender for the rest of his life.

Police investigating electoral fraud in Hackney, East London, have arrested three Lib-Dem councillors.

Cllr. Zev Lieberman, Cllr. Shahid Achala and Cllr. Ian Sharer, were arrested in a series of early-morning raids. The police swoop on the Lib-Dems follows the earlier arrest of twelve people, mainly Conservative activists, during investigations into a huge increase in the use of proxy votes in last year's council elections. A total of 998 proxy votes were cast in the borough, mainly in marginal wards.

Despite the involvement of a large number of Asians in some local Liberal-Democrat organisations, other Lib-Dems are often to be found 'playing the race card' in council elections where the Labour Party policy of giving preferential treatment to ethnic minorities has aroused resentment among white voters.

A few years ago this trick led to Lib-Dem leader Paddy Ashdown, disciplining his constituency party in Tower Hamlets after accusations of racist campaigning hit the headlines. They have been more careful since then, but Lib-Dem politicians in Tower Hamlets have still made a point of getting themselves in the local papers criticising Labour plans to rename parts of the borough with Asian names.

BNP local election candidates in Halifax, West Yorkshire, also found themselves up against Lib-Dems putting out subtle racist leaflets in order to con votes out of local people looking for a party prepared to stand up for the interests of white residents.

Simon Hughes MP, Lib-Dem leadership hopeful and likely London mayoral candidate, has also played the race card. In the run-up to the May elections he gave an interview to the Southwark News, in which he spoke of the 'problems' caused by a 'huge influx' of African immigrants into his London constituency since he became its MP fifteen years ago.

THE BNP AND RACE

The BNP is best known for its policy on race and immigration. The BNP opposes immigration into the UK from whatever its source. For forty years this immigration has primarily been coloured. But it is not an issue of colour since the party is equally opposed to immigration from Albania and Eastern Europe.

The BNP is not a 'race supremacist' party. The BNP does not claim that any one race is superior to any other, simply that they are different. The party merely wishes to preserve those differences which make up the rich tapestry of human kind.

Neither has the BNP any connection with 'race hate'. Indeed it is the multi-racialists who are the haters since it is they who are determined to destroy all cultures and all races to achieve a multi-racial mish-mash.

To protect and preserve the racial and cultural integrity of the British people — and of others too, the party believes in separation.

Only in a Black society will Black kids find true Black role models. Only in a Muslim society will Muslims find their religion free from Western influence. All peoples need a homeland. The British too need a homeland.

Nor are the BNP 'racist'. Indeed, the BNP are resisting the racist colonisation of Britain in which the native people of Britain are having their culture suppressed, their land colonised and are being discriminated against on racial grounds.

To sum up, the BNP is fighting for the very right to exist of not just the British, but of all peoples.

Ruth Dudley Edwards was born in Dublin. Her father was an Irish historian, her mother a game-keeper's daughter. She was brought up a Catholic. [She says] it's her own tribe, the Catholic nationalists who are the haters: "They want to demoralise Ulster Protestants, to achieve cultural genocide; and that's why I feel so passionately about this. What's wrong with celebrating King William III? He was a jolly good fellow. And what's wrong with celebrating the religion you believe in?"

She dismisses Catholics' sense of oppression at seeing the Orangemen tramp by. "If you are a Catholic child, and I tell you they are hate-filled, triumphalist swaggering bigots, then that's what you see; but the Protestants see some poor old devil staggering down the road, with the only suit he's ever had, on his way to church to pray for his God and for his neighbours, Protestant and Catholic alike.

The liberals, the Islington lot, they're delighted to hate the Orange Order because they are patriotic, religious, old-fashioned; and the liberati are free to hate them because they are white and in the majority." Boris Johnson, Daily Telegraph.

Home Secretary Jack Straw has promised a crackdown on asylum seekers and illegal immigrants. Whether he's got the bottle to follow it through remains to be seen. His last 'get tough' policy involved allowing 30,000 illegals already living in Britain to stay here.

And even if he does double the number of deportation orders, will it make much difference?

"Let us not mince our words about this," he went on, "I would never have imagined the way the West African community has grown. I don't understand how it has grown and I still have some problems about how they appear."

Labour MP Diane Abbott has since written to Home Secretary Jack Straw asking him "to ensure that no one plays the race card in local elections."

The BNP also intends to take action against the candidates of other parties that try to con voters by putting out literature or statements designed to suggest that they are opposed to immigration or to anti-white discrimination. Regardless of what they say during elections, the record of the Tories, Lib-Dems and Labour alike is one long, sorry story of unbroken support for the enforced imposition of the multi-racial 'experiment' on the British people.

Voters who've decided that the time has come to put things right shouldn't be fooled: The only party which really stands up for ordinary, decent Britons is the BNP.

SOFT ON PEDERASTS

Parents of children living near Nottingham jail have joined the growing number of decent people who have had enough of liberal sentencing putting their children at risk from perverts. Their concern over the creation of a luxury bedsit complex for released sex-cases came to a head when it emerged that Lennie Smith — suspected by police of murdering five little boys — has asked to be housed there.

In an attempt to keep the area safe for their children, 250 local residents staged a noisy demonstration, blocking the jail entrance with cars. Heavy-handed policing led to several scuffles between worried parents and British footballers are the latest group to discover that European law makes any move to protect their jobs 'illegal'. The revelation that 450 English players were struggling to find new clubs prompted the Football Association to examine the possibility of making a ruling that clubs should have to employ a set proportion of native-born players. But the FA quickly learned that EU law makes this impossible.

There is a restriction preventing clubs from playing more than three players from non-European Union countries, but any move to extend this bar to cover players from other EU states would be illegal. Expressing his disappointment over the situation, players' union boss Gordon Taylor admitted that there is no hope of turning the tide of foreign footballers putting our own players out of work. Although Taylor is talking about football, his analysis sums up the whole problem of economic globalisation:

"I would love to see a rule where half a club's starting line-up would have to be from the UK, but could you hold up such a ruling in the face of the lawyers and politicians?"

"If the process continues, I can police officers.

HIV-positive Smith, aged 44, has never been convicted of murder, but got ten years for sex attacks on a boy of six. The ex-cop who led the investigation which put him in prison, Roger Stoodley, has been quoted as warning that: "Wherever Smith goes, children will die."

A future BNP government will introduce the death penalty for child-sex killers, and life imprisonment for dangerous paedophile. In the meantime, BN supports parents — such as those in Nottingham — who are forced by the weakness of present laws to take action themselves to protect their children.

Lennie Smith:

even see a situation where international club football will take over from national football.

"It's already a serious worry for England, Italy, Spain and Germany. The countries with the greatest influx of foreigners are the ones who didn't make the final stages of the World Cup last year. We want to make sure that there are enough opportunities for our own talent."

Echoing Gordon Taylor's concern, former England international Chris Waddle expressed his own desire to see the three-foreigner rule reimposed on English clubs. Support for protection of the home game and players has also come from Tottenham's director of football, David Pleat:

"I think it is imperative that we continue to look harder to develop and coach better the young talent in this country. If we are taking younger talent from other countries then, for sure, opportunities to [our own] younger players will be denied."

What the miners, steelworkers, shoemakers and shipbuilders discovered in the 1980s, is now being understood by workers in a host of other industries, including engineering, textiles, financial services and football: Globalisation — the free movement of capital, labour and products — means bigger profits for the super-rich, but low wages, unemployment and insecurity for everyone else.

TO THE POINT

Or, We Couldn't Put It Better Ourselves — Items in the establishment press showing opinion moving our way.

There are estimated to be more than 80,000 here, many living on stolen and forged documents. And although 24,000 a year are refused permission to stay, only a quarter of them ever leave. It's costing the country £12 million every single day. Our honourable tradition of providing a safe haven and our reluctance to turn anyone away has been our downfall. We have become the world's dustbin. The Sun.

Almost every week, a new genetic discovery is announced, suggesting in more and more ways that we are born with various predispositions — in every way.

This week came the news that dyslexia is at least partly hereditary; a study has linked dyslexia with a region on chromosome six. Last week American research claimed to have identified a gene for a high sex drive and another for promiscuity.

Dr. Gene Hamer, the geneticist responsible, is notorious for claiming to have isolated the so-called 'gay gene'. Next month, he publishes a book called Living With Our Genes, in which he points out that, before long, geneticists will discover an enormous number of links between our genetic make-up and specific personality traits and aptitudes...

A great deal is already known about genetic factors in mental illness, autism and alcoholism.

I am convinced in general terms that genetics is confirming what was obvious to common sense, that we are not all equally in control of our lives and our behaviour.

Minette Marrin, Daily Telegraph.

While blacks comprise just 8 per cent of all Londoners, they account for 26 per cent of all murder victims. Young black people in London are almost nine times more likely to be shot dead than any other group: last year nearly 70 per cent of gun deaths in London were from the black community, with most of the victims and killers belonging to local gangs. In parts of S. London particularly, the number of shootings and violent attacks, many of them drug related are paralysing whole neighbourhoods. London Evening Standard

HOW THE PRESS MAKE UP AND DISTORT THE NEWS

At the end of June, BN editor Tony Lecomber received a remarkable reply in response to a complaint he had made to the Press Complaints Commission in respect of a hatchet job in The Mirror's lie sheet.

According to Piers Morgan, The Mirror's editor, inaccuracies are 'not relevant'. It is no leap of logic to see that what Morgan is saying is that the truth is not relevant.

This is, of course, nothing more than what long-standing observers of the British press have known for years. To have one of the establishment's propagandists admit it in print though, is rare.

For the enlightenment and edification of our readers, BN prints Morgan's signed confession.

The Mirror

"I really do not think that any inaccuracy is of any relevance."

Yours sincerely

BNP candidates

A story in The Sunday Telegraph of June 6 reported claims in a Commons motion by Frank Cook, the Labour MP, that there was no proof that three candidates standing for the British National Party in the European elections existed. After publication of the story all three candidates came forward to demonstrate their existence.

Above: One of an increasingly common occurrence — a correction in relation to a poorly researched piece of nonsense, this time from the Sunday Telegraph.

PUBLIC INCONVENIENCE

Drug addicts and homosexuals have forced the closure of nearly half of Luton's public toilets in the last year. Only sixteen are left with fourteen being closed as "they were costing too much to keep open in a decent state," said a council spokesman.

STAR WARS — RACIST!

Two of the Star Wars characters in The Phantom Menace — Jar Jar and Watto have been described as 'offensive' to ethnic minorities. Jar Jar has a pronounced Jamaican accent and Watto is described as 'stereotypically Jewish'. It was not revealed why Watto is thought to be stereotypically Jewish. It could be said that value judgments of that kind are of themselves 'racist'!

ASIANS — CRICKET'S FUTURE

Disgraced Sports Minister Tony Banks has said that the future to a revival of 'English' cricket lies in 'the fantastic enthusiasm' for cricket in Asians.

Banks, who bungled the Manchester Utd/FA Cup affair has been replaced as Minister.

IMMIGRATION FILE

At least 40 illegal immigrants drowned when the boats that they were in collided with each other off southern Mexico. Another 40 were rescued by coastguards.

ANTI-CHRISTIAN BIAS

The Millenium Commission has rejected plans for a Christian village on the banks of the Thames at Battersea.

The commission rejected it saying that the idea was not as distinctive as others.

Meanwhile, the Commissioners have agreed to shortlist a £25 million bid by the Hindu Foundation for a multi-cultural centre in Peterborough and a £10 million grant to the Swaminarayan Hindu mission in Neasden.

NATWEST COMES UNSTUCK

Scores of NatWest bank customers have closed their accounts in a protest backlash after the bank sponsored a dinner organised by Stonewall, the militant homosexual campaign group.

Christians in particular have taken the lead after the bank's sponsoring of the 'equality dinner'.

THE BLOOD OF COMMUNISM

Reknowned historian Nikolai Tolstoy has written to Foreign Secretary Robin Cook urging that Britain should formally apologise for the 'war crime' of forcibly sending huge numbers of men, women and children back to certain death in the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia after World War Two.

Tens, possibly hundreds of thousands — Russian POWs, Cossacks, White Russians, Slovenians, Croats, and anti-Communist Serbs — were beaten and herded at bayonet-point out of refugee camps in Central Europe by British soldiers, and handed over to the Communists. Many committed suicide rather than go back, with mothers hurling children off bridges and jumping to their deaths after them. Many were machine-gunned to death within earshot of their British captors, and even those who were not murdered straight away were sent to near certain death by overwork, starvation, cold and disease in the Soviet Gulag concentration camp system.

A rare glimpse of the horrors of that brutal system was provided by a three-hour documentary on BBC2 recently. This estimated that 50 million people were exterminated by the Soviets in the name of human equality and communist brotherhood. The programme told of slave labour, torture chambers, mass executions, sadism, endless terror and mounds of skulls. As it was made by the BBC, rather less was said about the way in which generations of British left-wing intellectuals praised and excused the Marxist psychopaths responsible, or the shameful role of the British Army in helping to provide some of the victims of the Gulag.

The experiences of Nikolai Tolstoy suggest that this silence from the British establishment is more than a policy of turning a blind eye. In 1990 Tolstoy was sued for libel by Lord Aldington, over his book The Minister and the Massacres. Aldington won, and was awarded a massive £3 million in damages, while Tolstoy was refused leave to appeal. Among the scandalous circumstances of the case were the fact that Aldington was a close acquaintance of the trial judge, a friend of several then-Cabinet Ministers, and a former deputy chairman of the Conservative Party.

Bankrupt but unbothered, Tolstoy took the case to the European Court of Human Rights, which ruled that the refusal to permit his appeal was unfitting for a democracy and "a violation of the applicant's right to freedom of expression." That was in 1995 and, since then, no attempt has been made through the British courts to collect the damages awarded against the noted novelist and historian.

Tolstoy is now working on yet another book on the subject, but is also drawing attention to the continued cover-up by urging the government to act. He notes that Tony Blair's apology for the Irish Potato Famine (something which, despite Republican propaganda to the contrary, the British government could have done very little about) set a precedent for a symbolic act of contrition for a far more recent, and totally avoidable, wrong. He argues that it would "reek of double standards" for a government which has just made such a fuss about ethnic cleansing in Kosovo to refuse even to take note of a far greater slaughter perpetrated with the help of British troops in Austria.

Nikolai Tolstoy is not proposing any sort of costly restitution payments. All he wants is recognition of a terrible wrong, an apology and, as a symbol of that apology, for Britain to take on the upkeep of the cemetery in Linz where a few of the Cossack victims of the post-war massacres are buried.

Letters

Write to: The Editor, British Nationalist, PO Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW.

Sir — Labour are planning to double the price of petrol during the next few years. Our 'Tony Turpin, highway robber' leaflet needs to be revamped to cover more than just diesel.

In the last budget, petrol taxes went up by 8% but pensions went up by only 3%. For every £1.00 I pay in petrol, the government is stealing 85p.

A. Rudd, Birmingham.

Sir — I would like to express my pleasure at the BNP's 102,000 plus votes in England and Scotland. How the party has changed and grown enormously since I joined several years ago! A left-wing publication which assured its readers that we would not have the ability to do what we did in the Euro Elections (or indeed, in the 1997 General Election) has bitterly admitted that the 'rise of the respectable right can only add legitimacy to the rise of Nationalism' and referred to the BNP as 'buoyant'.

A word of caution though. Many of us helped the party financially at the last election — but money is still needed to ensure that the party is able to exploit the gains that have been made. I hope some of the new members of the party will consider joining the Welling Club — £20 per month for a newsletter and an excellent annual get-together. It's only £5 per week, but with enough of us doing it, the party is guaranteed a steady annual income. Remember, every pound we give hurts the people who are trying to destroy our country!

Andrew Williams, London.

Sir — Here in Thanet, great claims are being made about the fall in the jobless figures. This is partly as a result of the New Deal scheme which takes people off the register. It turns out that people in part-time work and those on training schemes are also 'off the list'.

This doesn't count the huge number of people on 'the sick'. Britain has the highest number claiming sick benefit in Europe. This, as everyone knows, was the result of the Tories trying to drive down the jobless figures and pushing people onto sick benefit. But these people have an incentive to stay 'on the sick' since it pays more and we will assuredly have this large blip with us until all these people reach retirement age. What a farce!

When will Blair provide the conditions needed to create real jobs?

F. Cussen, Kent.

Sir — Refugees have started stabbing people in broad daylight. After one such incident on Crouch End Broadway, a boy was left fighting for his life.

White people approaching the council for anything are shouted at, discriminated against and accused of 'racism'.

Violence in Haringey is out of control. The level of mugging and rape is horrific.

Jane Duncan, London.

Sir — A friend of mine works at ASDA in Oldham. Last month, she tells me that a large group of Albanians were invited into the store to make free 'purchases' of cosmetics and toiletries. The bill for this little lot came to more than £2,500 with the tab being picked up by Oldham council.

Just when will a group of our old age pensioners be invited to share in this council largess?

N. Davies, Manchester.

FOREIGN NEWS

Linda Gibbons, a diminutive and softly spoken grandmother of four, is a political prisoner. She has now been in jail for more than four years. Her 'crime'? Peacefully violating an anti-picketing injunction by praying outside an abortion clinic.

Whatever your personal opinion of abortion (and the BNP is opposed to it in all but exceptional circumstances), the idea that its opponents — or supporters, for that matter — should be thrown into prison simply for taking part in peaceful demonstrations on the subject is an affront for all lovers of freedom.

Alan Borovoy, for more than 30 years a senior lawyer in the Canadian Civil Liberties Association, has written of his disgust at the way in which politicians and judges, who back in the 1960s were fervent supporters of the right to picket in industrial disputes, are now in favour of taking that right away from people who do not share their liberal political stance. In The New Anti-Liberals, he argues that the right to hold peaceful pickets is an essential component of free expression and democracy.

Mr. Borovoy still believes in that right, and condemns the hypocrisy of old socialists now in government who have changed their minds. Typical is Attorney-General Marion Boyd, who has responded to the activities of Linda Gibbons and other Pro-Life campaigners by seeking injunctions to prohibit "insulting, abusive or defamatory language" by anti-abortion pickets, and a total ban on all demonstrations within 200 metres of abortion clinics.

Quite apart from the impact of such state strong-arm tactics on the Pro-Lifers, genuine civil libertarians in Canada are also alarmed at the precedent such restrictions have for people involved in all sorts of other campaigns as well. To paraphrase the old anti-Nazi text: "First they came for the revisionists, and I did not speak out, because I was not a revisionist. Then they came for the Pro-Lifers, and I did not speak out, because I was not a Pro-Lifer. Then they came for the environmentalists, and I did not speak out, because I was not an environmentalist. Then they came for the striking workers, and I did not speak out, because I was not a striking worker. And then they came for me, and there was no-one left to speak out for me."

AMERICA

American officials have assured the Ministry of Defence here in Britain that the recent spy scandal in the US — where a Chinese-born scientist working on the American nuclear weapons programme gave all its nuclear secrets to China — has no implications for Britain and our Trident missile system.

As reported in April's BN, America has sacked the scientist, one Mr. Wen Ho Lee. The appearance of Chinese miniaturised warheads suspiciously resembling the US W-88 confirms the worst. In addition, China has threatened Taiwan, the tiny state off its coast, with the low blast, high radiation yield neutron bomb — something it previously did not have.

The spy scandal is a new facet on the multi-racial nightmare engulfing the West. Anti-racists will no doubt be dismayed that Lee favoured his own country and kind before liberal America.

They can reflect on the fact that multi-racialism has given nuclear parity to communist China and the butchers of Tianemen Square. Britain's Trident missile system has been compromised in the process.

Renaissance Family Day

Saturday, July 3rd marked a milestone in the development of the BNP's family values organisation, Renaissance when Renaissance supremo Sharron Edwards organised a family day for party members with families. The event, in the West Midlands was highly successful with nearly 200 coming and going throughout the day. At any one time, around 150 were present. There were dozens of children running around and having fun with painted faces, and eating candy floss & hotdogs. And while these had to be paid for chicken legs, pies, pop, sandwiches were all provided free! That was when the children weren't bouncing around on one of two bouncy castles brought in specially for the day. There was table tennis for the slightly older children (and some of the grown-ups!) and when the adults organised a tug-o-war, some of the children got a taste of that too.

The tug-o-war contest started with Coventry BNP easily pulling away to a win against S. Birmingham, although their weight advantage was probably worth another two men!

Two scratch sides then tested each other — the 'inner city boys' versus the 'white flight brigade'. Again, it was a fairly easy win, this time for the 'inner city boys' hailing variously from London, Dudley and Birmingham.

The two winning sides then set to pull against each other. This was a much more closely contested match. The 'inner city boys' claimed a win by default when the Coventry side collapsed to the ground, but Coventry insisted they had won before this had happened! It was a close call, but Coventry probably just shaded it.

Coventry also managed to win the 5-aside football contest with the help of mid-Staffs ace striker, Neil Phillips. Once again, S. Birmingham come off second best to Coventry 4-0, and once again the 'white flight brigade' come second to the 'inner city boys', this time 4-1.

The final of the 5-aside was less closely contested than the tug-o-war with Coventry

Kick about before the Five-aside tournament

The children's tug-o-war

The bouncy castles were a real favourite, being in almost continuous use

winning 3-1.

For the BNP, families lie right at the heart of a nation and children are the centre of any family. So the day was mainly for them. The two bouncy castles were in almost continuous use as was the football area when the grown-ups weren't on it! Later on in the afternoon there was pass-the-parcel and just after that a magician who entertained the children at length with tricks, stories and songs.

The evening was just as lively with a spectacular and extensive firework display put on by a party supporter.

This was a very good day out. Very enjoyable, very worthwhile.

Sharron Edwards, who organised the Renaissance Day must be both congratulated and thanked for her hard work. Other women interested in organising something in their areas should call Sharron on 01902 892769

COMMUNITY POLITICS: STOKE-ON-TRENT

Yet another white victim of the multiracial 'experiment' forgotten by the establishment has been remembered by the British National Party. 23-year-old David Ackley was set upon by a gang of twenty Asians in the Meir area of the town early on June 20th last year. The popular local lad was repeatedly kicked and punched, then beaten around the head with a heavy implement. He died four weeks later as a result of his injuries.

The police have not managed to arrest anyone at all for David's murder. Unlike the Stephen Lawrence case, this brutal racial murder has received absolutely no coverage in the national press. It is clear that the Establishment — everyone from the Home Secretary to the police, newspaper editors and the BBC — want to keep the case of David Ackley as quiet as that of most of the other white victims of their failed multiracial 'experiment'. No front page picture of David Ackley in The Guardian or The Mail!

But thanks to the BNP branch in Stoke-on-Trent, at least David's murder, and the police failure to bring the culprits to justice, will not be forgotten in his home town. A year after his death, BNP activists began delivering 5,000 copies of a hard-hitting leaflet drawing attention to the case. It is hoped that this will force at least the local press to cover the scandal, and create enough public dissatisfaction to spur the police on to further investigations.

It's not a matter of causing trouble or stirring up ill-feeling, but of securing equal protection under the law for white victims of racial attacks. It is a fact that white victims are ignored by the media. And it is the fact that the perpetrators know that the police don't take attacks on whites seriously which is encouraging more and more young 'ethnic' thugs to carry out racial attacks.

It's got to stop, and getting involved in peaceful, political protest designed to mobilise public opinion against anti-white racism is the best way to stop it.

BRADFORD

Bradford BNP has launched yet another campaign in the community, this time to draw attention to the council's favouritism towards Asians.

The Ravo' Community Action Team leaflet poses the question Why is Bradford Council giving away £millions to 15,000 private Asian homeowners?

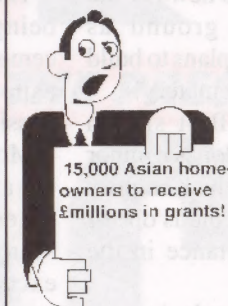

Is it a Labour attempt to buy the Asian vote? Whatever, it raises a definite question of corruption.

CIRCLE NEWS!

Following on from the success of the BNP's first series of organisational circles, a second wave of special interest groups is now under construction. These include ideas for a Pensioners' group, an ex-servicemen's circle and a BNP youth wing. The lorry drivers' sub-group proposed some months ago is also still on the cards, but needs several more volunteers before it can take shape properly. Perhaps the most interesting and imaginative new project is a South African Friends of the BNP.

It is envisaged that the S.A. Friends will function on one level as a smaller version of our already established American Friends operation. But there is another, more reciprocal aspect planned that makes this a potentially very important initiative indeed. This is the idea that the British-based section of the circle will be taking steps to be able to provide emergency accommodation for refugees of British stock forced to return to this country by the deteriorating racial and criminal situation in South Africa.

Nearly a dozen properties owned by BNP members or sympathisers which might be suitable have already been identified, and the circle officials hope that more will be forthcoming now that we have begun to publicise the scheme. Already, the British end of the SA Friends has provided such accommodation; and while it is uncertain whether the present steady trickle of S.A. refugees will become a real flood, we must be prepared for the worst. These are our people, so we must be ready to provide help if it is needed. It would not be a long-term commitment, because the vast majority of returning whites have the skills and ability to become as productive and self-sufficient in Britain as they have been in South Africa. All they need is a roof over their heads and a bit of moral support until they can find their feet.

REDBRIDGE BNP MOUNT CAMPAIGN

Readers will be accustomed to BNP groups and branches leading the fight against new mosques and temples etc. in what is a cultural takeover being waged across the whole of Britain.

This month, BN brings news of the party breaking new ground as Redbridge BNP opposes plans to build a 10,000 plot Moslem cemetery!

The 21-acre Green Belt site in Hainault, north east London is a minor flood plain for a stream which empties into nearby Fairlop lake and is one of only ten sites of importance in the whole borough.

The picturesque site hasn't changed for hundreds of years and supports all manner of wildlife including ponies. Children play there in the summer months and it is rightly valued as one of the area's beautiful natural assets.

That hasn't stopped an application being made to turn the site into a cemetery though. And the flood plain aspect of the site also raises the possibility of water contamination.

More than 500 local residents packed out a public meeting to hear about the scheme and voice their opposition. Many were left outside as the numbers exceeded the capacity of the local community centre.

As tempers ran high, some of the residents hurled racist abuse at the speakers on the platform and regrettably for race relations, several local black people were heard abusing 'pakis'.

A dozen BNP members delivered leaflets supporting local residents but warning them the cemetery was likely to be a 'done deal'.

The local and hostile Ilford Recorder carried the story of the party's involvement under the headline 'Spreading Hatred'. The disparity between headline and article though — especially for those who had the benefit of reading the leaflet — will have undermined the paper's credibility.

With Hainault residents likely to find out soon that in any conflict of interests with racial minority groups, the real British always come off second best, there's a political awakening for hundreds just waiting to happen. And Redbridge BNP will be right there!

BURNLEY BNP GROWING!

Burnley BNP's new and dynamic Organiser, Robert Longworth is the head of the country's fastest growing BNP group. As predicted, Burnley is growing by leaps and bounds.

Hand in hand with this rapid growth has been the impact Burnley BNP has had on the town in terms of press and publicity. A continual stream of letters to the press alongside local headlines have forced the party to the forefront of the town's political consciousness. Mischievous posters in the name of a councillor well known for his propensity to 'brown-nose' the Asian community stating that Nelson is being ethnically cleansed set the ball rolling with the loudest screech coming from the councillor himself professing undying loyalty to the town's ethnic 'minority'. In fact, as the poster made clear, the real ethnic minority are the town's local whites!

BN trusts that Burnley BNP will, in the hallowed traditions of minority race politics, press for an ethnic minority cultural centre where the beleaguered English can learn about their great history and traditions free from 'majority cultural imperialism'.

I am not responsible for the racist posters!

By JAMES REED

A FORMER deputy leader of Pendle Council has reacted angrily to claims that he is behind racist posters.

Tony Greaves, a former Liberal Democrat councillor, described the posters displayed in Manchester Road, Nelson, and North Valley Road, Colne, as a "forgery".

The notices appeared on Tuesday night and read: "Nelson is being ethnically cleansed - Asian 53%, White 47%".

A note on the bottom of each poster reads: "Printed and produced by Tony Greaves, ex-Pendle Liberal councillor".

Mr Greaves said he had made a formal complaint to the police about the posters. He said: "Whoever it is, they are clearly scum - racist scum - and they need to be stamped on hard."

"I think they are clearly an offence under the Race Relations Act in that they are an incitement to racial hatred."

"They have been put up by people who want to stir up racial trouble in Nelson and have little concern for the truth."

"It is clearly harmful to good community relations."

Mr Greaves claimed the

NELSON IS BEING ETHNICALLY CLEANSED ASIAN 53% WHITE 47%

FORGED: One of the racist posters are a response to his actions against notices promoting the British National Party.

"I have been involved in the campaign against racism for a long time and I was publicly involved in removing BNP posters during the European elections."

He added: "These are people who have some sort of grudge against me."

"I shall be making sure my door is locked at night. These are not nice people."

"They have no place whatsoever in a civilised society."

Those who have the courage to speak out

MAY we respond to the article in last week's Advertiser and Times in which a local councillor suggested giving "short shrift" to our concerns regarding the building of a mosque in Clitheroe?

The headquarters of the BNP in Kent, was originally contacted by a concerned resident living quite close to the proposed site for this mosque and we felt it was essential to let Clitheroe residents know that there were people around who cared enough about their concerns to want to do something about them.

The proposal has clearly upset many local people in the town, as witnessed by the raising of a 600-name petition objecting to the plan on the basis that it would not only be unneighbourly, but that it might also adversely affect the nearby house building project, which is worth hundreds of thousands of pounds.

At the same time, we felt that it might also upset the good race relations currently being enjoyed.

Finally, we feel that if more local politicians were more sympathetic to the views and concerns of the electorate and spent less time criticising those that have the courage to speak out, there would have been no need for the residents of Clitheroe to contact our party.

We will continue to monitor the situation in Clitheroe and would ask Coun. Bert Jones to spend less time criticising us and more time looking after the interests of his voters.

This headline and these letters have captured the attention of the whole of East Lancashire. Other BNP initiatives opposing a drug rehabilitation unit have also captured the imagination of local people. At last, local people can see that someone is articulating their views.

Posters: it wasn't us

WE must be allowed to respond to Mr Tony Greaves's allegations that the British National Party was responsible for posters displayed recently in the Pendle area reading "Nelson is being ethnically cleansed, Asian 53 per cent, White 47 per cent. While we suspect that a certain section of the community in that area probably has some degree of sympathy with the sentiments of that production, we had no role in either its publication or display. As a result, we have instructed our lawyers to deal with Mr Greaves's unfounded and unproven allegations.

In the meantime, may we respectfully request that Mr Greaves seeks treatment for his obvious phobia against the British National Party and his inability to use intelligent and coherent language in describing the decent, patriotic stand that the British National Party takes on issues which people like Mr Greaves have failed to tackle, and resolve.
